SHERIDAN — Sheridan can look forward to a new bridge on Lewis Street this fall, as work is underway to not only replace the dilapidated structure, but to use the opportunity to clean up a couple intersections and enhance the parks and pathways system.

The Lewis Street bridge project is a joint project of the Wyoming Department of Transportation and the city of Sheridan and will also involve renovations on Alpex, Dow and Menan streets.

WYDOT Resident Engineer Jerry Buckley explained the existing bridge has to go because of several structural defaults. "The deck is in poor condition," he said, adding that while the bridge probably isn’t a lot of places, and it’s not good," Buckley said, adding that while the bridge probably isn’t going to fail during construction, it’s going to be replaced after more than 50 years of use.

Man charged with child sexual exploitation

BY TRACIE DAVIS  THE SHERIDAN PRESS

SHERIDAN — A Sheridan man pleaded not guilty in 4th Judicial District Court on Thursday to sexual exploitation of children.

John Zullig, 44, was arrested by deputies of the Sheridan County Sheriff’s Office last summer after child pornography was found in his home. According to the affidavit of probable cause filed by Sheridan County Attorney and Prosecutor Matt Rodde, a confidential witness approached law enforcement and indicated that in 2006, Zullig had shown the witness Polaroid photographs depicting a 12-year-old girl in sexually explicit positions.

Based on information given in that interview, investigators secured a warrant to search Zullig’s house and found an envelope containing several photographs in a cabinet in his bedroom. Two of the photos matched the description provided by the witness.

Zullig first appeared in Sheridan County Circuit Court, where Judge Shelley Coniff assigned a bond of $10,000 cash or 10 percent, which means $1,000 was posted. District Court Judge John Penn continued Zullig’s bond at Thursday’s arraignment and set a trial date for August 26.

Zullig is also presently serving several other periods after he pleaded guilty in possession of child pornography last summer.

Any exploitation of children is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $1,000 and 10 years in prison.

SHERIDAN — The Northern Wyoming Community College District Board of Trustees heard from NWCCD President Dr. Paul Young and Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer Cheryll Heath on potential facilities renovations and upgrades planned for Sheridan College.

Although a bond proposal for a new technology facility was defeated in an election last fall, Young said $1 million has been raised locally to proceed with some renovations to the current building.

Plans include renovating the welding and machinery areas, adding 2,200-square-feet of storage for the diesel mechanics program and renovating 1,600-square-foot for construction technology.

Bill seeks community integration for people with disabilities

BY HANNAH WEST  THE SHERIDAN PRESS

CHERRYVILLE — A recently passed bill in the Wyoming Legislature has created some confusion about employment options for people with developmental disabilities in Cherryville.

House Bill 71, sponsored by Rep. Lee Pile, D-Laramie, establishes that the state has a policy that a business must meet a goal of non-disabled employees in order to receive any tax credits, to employ people with disabilities who cannot work an integrated job.

However, according to a press release by the Center for Independent and Locally Owned Enterprises of North East Wyoming, the bill would eliminate their program that can allow organizations that serve people with disabilities who are unable to function at a regular job to pay employees.

Cheyenne — Gov. Matt Mead and other Wyoming ofﬁcials met with the state’s legislative leaders on Thursday to discuss a new Medicaid expansion proposal that would be sent to the U.S. Senate for approval.

Mead said the state’s current Medicaid program serves more than 220,000 people and provides health care and long-term services and supports to adults aged 65 and older, people with disabilities, children and pregnant women.

However, there are many people who are not eligible for the current program, Mead said, including adults who are working and making too much money to qualify for the state’s current program, but who cannot afford private insurance.

Under the Affordable Care Act, states can qualify for federal matching funds to expand Medicaid to cover individuals with incomes at or below 138 percent of the federal poverty line, which is currently $15,856 a year.

The federal government has agreed to pay 90 percent of the cost of the expansion, and the state’s share is 10 percent.

But until Congress approves it, the $15 billion in federal funds remains in a state trust fund.

Wyoming’s legislative leaders have indicated that they are open to expanding Medicaid, but it is up to Congress to pass legislation to make it happen.

Gov. Mead said the delegation’s meetings with legislative leaders were productive and that they are one step closer to getting approval to expand Medicaid in Wyoming.

He said they discussed the importance of health care and the need for a long-term solution.

He also said he was encouraged by the response he received from the delegations and that they are working towards a common goal.

The delegation will continue to work on expanding Medicaid, Mead said, and they hope to have a plan in place by the end of the year.

He said the state will continue to work with Congress and the federal government to ensure that the program is fiscally sustainable and that it meets the needs of the state’s residents.

SHERIDAN — Photographs taken in the Cloud Peak Wilderness area will be on display in The Inner Circle at Sheridan County Fulmer Public Library during the month of March.

Local representatives of the U.S. Forest Service will be displaying the photographs as a part of their celebration of the 10th anniversary of the founding of The Wilderness Act.

A reception will be held on Monday, March 4th from 5-7 p.m. to mark the opening.

All members of the community are invited to attend this free event.

For more information contact Kevin Knapp at 674-8585 extension 28.

The library is located at 355 W. Alger St.

Couler says local residents of Cloud Peak Wilderness can expect above average snowfall because of the warm, moist air from the Pacific and the other incoming cold air from Canada.

Forecasters say the result will be significant snowfall.

Snow already is falling in western Wyoming and spreading east. The forecast calls for 8-16 inches of snow in Jackson Hole, 6-12 inches in Casper and Sheridan, and somewhat lesser amounts in Lander, Riverton, Kemmerer and Gillette.

An avalanche danger already is rated between “moderate” and “considerable” in the mountains of western Wyoming.

Matus, Cuban rebel leader turned Castro foe, dies

MIAMI (AP) — Huber Matus Benitez, who helped lead the Cuban Revolution as one of Fidel Castro’s key lieutenants before his efforts to resign from the burgeoning communist government landed him in prison for 25 years, has died. He was 86.

Matus died Thursday at a Miami area hospital following a massive heart attack two days before his 87th birthday. He was born in Cuba last year after a massacre May 19, 2011, that killed four, his family said. An inspired Matus later joined Castro and served as a commander in the Sierra Maestra mountains. The two clashed on occasion, but Matus claimed that at one point Castro named him third in line for leadership after Castro’s brother Raúl. The Cuban Times said Marut was a general in the Belgian forces in the Congo during the Belgian occupation of the Congo and led a 1962 coup. Matus, who had been a professor of education, first traveled to Cuba to obtain weapons and ammunition for delivery to Castro’s forces before eventually joining the rebels in the mountains. He was captured in 1959 by Batista forces but was able to escape, according to his family. The revolution overthrow President Fulgencio Batista on New Year’s Day, 1959, and Matus, who was 20 at the time, had a monkey wrapped around his neck.

Belgian modern art director Jan Hoet dies at 77

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgian contemporary art director Jan Hoet, who organized a major exhibition in private homes and curated Germany’s Documenta art fair during his death: “I was 77.”

He was a hospital in Ghent after a long illness, his family said.

Prime Minister Elio Di Rupo of Belgium, who did not get the point of modern art, said in the process, the rising down-to-earth style brought about, “the need to impress of everyone, making, a boring form of art.”

His fake spilled beyond the border and he backed a number of major exhibitions from Germany to China.

He was “invaluable,” painter Luc Tuymans said of Hoet, who bought his first work and was instrumental in making Tuymans a global name in contemporary painting.

Van had the enthusiasm and the force of conviction to talk about art in understandable terms. That way he was able to draw a great many people in France, Tuymans said.

That included his 1968 break-through exhibit “Chambres d’Amour” (“Guest Rooms”).

He published 330 figure books in the university town of Bruges, to open their houses and let international art amateurs in.

The results ranked from the crazy to the sublime, and through an up-and-down for a peak.

He took art out of the museums and into the city and it made him very special,” Tuymans said.

Hoet, an aristocratic lover, loved to draw.

As part of the 200 “Over the Edges” exhibition in his beloved Ghent, where he was museum curator, he let artist Jan Faire drape columns of a university auditorium to slope of the goal. To put at heart of the social debate.

It was “one of the greatest,” Tuymans said.

The widespread benefits to Wyoming’s economy are why state officials have been pushing so hard to attract the industry’s attention since 2006. Wyoming established the grant Mountain West hopes to use to defray the cost of electricity and broadband space for three years. That helps Wyoming data centers compete with the very low prices available in places like Los Angeles and New York.

The ultimate goal is to be able to attract national customers. If we could entice some of the biggies to take that first step, it would make it easier to get future tenants.

—Jim Moberly, president of Mountain West

The program has provided $13.25 million in grants to Microsoft and Green House in Cheyenne and Prology in Sheridan. Those data centers are expected to add 27 new jobs and $8.59 million in salaries during the life of the grant.

Microsoft also received $1.5 million from a pool of money meant to allow the governor to recruit data centers.

Wyoming data centers can also purchase equipment like servers, which must be weather a data center could ask for, which means companies spend less to keep their servers cool.

“We’re very competitive with other states in our packages,” said Robert Jeffries, chief executive officer of the Wyoming Business Council.

Jenssen said the domain that set off Wyoming’s recent string of data center recruiting victories was a supercomputer. In 2010, the National Center for Atmospheric Research broke ground in Cheyenne on a facility for Yellowstone, one of the world’s fastest computers.

The center selected Wyoming for many of the same reasons data centers are thriving here.

The move got the industry’s attention. In 2011, Prology in Sheridan and Green House in Cheyenne announced they were moving into new data centers. In 2012, Microsoft said it plans to start building a new data center in Cheyenne.

“When people think Wyoming, we don’t want them to think of Yellowstone (National Park) or the Tetons. We want them to think of data centers,” Moberly said.

Wyoming’s rugged beauty and wealth of outdoor activities — fetching your pole from downstairs and fishing a blue-ribbon trout river just a few blocks away, for example — are just perks.
If somebody is much less productive based on what their abilities are or disabilities are, 14C is a waiver you can apply for that states, you know, we can't afford to pay them what we would pay outside of the supported employment programs.

Coleman said her amendment ensures that organizations like RENEW will be able to continue their employment programs—which include duties like recycling and paper shredding—that serve as a training ground to help people with developmental disabilities learn skills that can be used in the regular workforce and to give them a sense of fulfillment and responsibility.

RENEW CEO Chris Ahlstrom said he and others with his organization were originally concerned about House Bill 35 because they feared it could eliminate their programs entirely or that they would be required to pay minimum wage to the people they employ through the sub minimum wage waiver, which would be cost prohibitive for RENEW.

With the amendment, however, Ahlstrom said he approves.

“We are in full support of the bill as it’s written with the amendment, with the exclusion for providers like ourselves,” Ahlstrom said.

Executive Director of Wyoming Community Service Providers Steve Bahmer said his organization is in full support of the bill with the amendment, as well.

“What Rep. Filer’s bill does is say we’re going to make it state policy to seek community integrated employment option first, and if that’s not an option, then of course, the center based employment option remains,” Bahmer said.

Bahmer did say there is discussion on the federal level about eliminating center-based employment.

“You can see how a bill that deems community integrated employment should be first might be mistaken for that kind of sectarian movement, but that’s not what this bill is,” Bahmer said.

Filer said the bill is not intended to mandate that people with developmental disabilities must work, must be hired or must be paid minimum wage if the sub minimum wage waiver and center-based employment are their best option.

He said its intent was to get the state focused on finding ways to integrate people with development disabilities into the community in order to save the state money it pays for day habilitation services and provide a better standard of living for people who often want to work.

“It was really to improve the lives of people with disabilities. A lot of them just want to work,” Filer said.

“But we have nothing in our department to make that come together and to help find employment—most to help train—we do train for vocational rehab, we do train for employment—but we need something in statute that makes them get together and do something to help this population get more and more integrated in the community,” he added.

Dan J. Daniels

Dan J. Daniels was born September 4, 1940 in Sheridan, Wyoming to Daisy Daniels and Charles Daniels. He was married to Dixie, father to Dan T., Paul, Danette, Diane, Judie, and his baby girl Darlene. Rich and Treasure passed away on Saturday, February 22, 2014 after valiantly fighting Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease for many years. Dan and his lovely bride Dixie moved to Arizona from Sheridan, Wyoming ten years ago for health reasons. (Some of Darlene’s siblings, however, believed she actually planned to move them here from Wyoming along with a number of other Sheridanites when she was unable to find a teaching job closer to them.)

Dan was a big, big man both in stature and in heart. His shoulders were broad and his heart was generous and he gave freely to those who asked or needed help understanding that he might never hear his kindliness. He was a friend not just to his neighbors, but before his health began to fail, he and Dixie often took trips of clothing, food and other necessities to the poor in Mexico. Despite declining health Dan was always cheerful, compassionate and thought of others first. He was known to stubbornly enjoy early morning telephone conversations with his children while drinking his coffee with his favorite cats.

Dan graduated from Sheridan High School in 1958. He raised his family in Dayton, Wyoming, a small town outside of Sheridan and taught them the value of hard work, responsibility and the Word of Our Lord. He and Dixie ran a number of successful businesses in Sheridan before retiring to Arizona and was known for as well a good heart and reserved actor. Dan was preceded in death by his parents and “Dad” Phil Reamers and Barbara Daniels. In addition to the love of his life, Dixie and his children, Dan is survived by a dear brother Bill Daniels and numerous friends.

A memorial service will be held at 1pm on Monday March 3rd at Messinger Payson Funeral Home 901 S. Westerly Rd.

Contributions for stem cell research may be made in Memory of Dan Daniels to International Cord Blood Registry, 11359 Executive Center Drive, Suite 315, Rancho Mirage, CA 92270. For more information contact Amy at 480-342-7005.

James Robert Porter

James Robert Porter, 76, of Sheridan, passed away on Tuesday, February 25, 2014 at the Sheridan Memorial Hospital with family at his side.

Jim was born on June 9, 1937 in South Connellsville, PA, to parents John and Elizabeth (Sadler) Porter. Jim graduated from Sheridan High School in 1956. He worked for 30 years as an outfitter in the Wyoming Mountains. He loved carpentry, hunting, fishing and spending time in the great outdoors. He made many lifelong friends while drinking his coffee with his favorite cats.

Jim was preceded in death by his parents, brother, and grandson, Justin “Winchester”. He is survived by a dear sister Barbara of Dayton, Wyoming, and a dear brother Bill of Dayton, Wyoming, as well as his two children, to whom he was deeply devoted.

A memorial service will be held at 1pm on Monday March 3rd at Messinger Payson Funeral Home 901 S. Westerly Rd.

Rep. Eric Barlow, R-Gillette, was the original sponsor of the Medicaid amendment that passed the House.

“Now the governor has some guidance on how he can proceed,” Barlow said after the committee vote.

“And I think the Legislature has provided that, and I hope the governor will be receptive to proceeding,” Sen. Curt Meier, R-LaGrange, served on the budget conference committee. He said after Thursday’s vote that he doesn’t know whether the measure will pass in the Senate.

“It really doesn’t do that much from the standpoint of what it tells the governor he can do what he already can do,” Meier said. “So the value of it, I think, is probably limited.”

The conference committee’s amendment specifies that any Medicaid expansion proposal would have to be submitted to a legislative committee by Nov. 1 or as soon after as possible. It specifies that any expansion not be done to the state’s general fund or generally harm Wyoming businesses.

Sen. Eli Bebout, R-Riverton, is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and led the Senate conference committee. Speaking after the committee vote, he said he’s concerned that expanding Medicaid could harm private insurance carriers in the state as well as small employers.

“But it’s an amendment that says we’re going to go ahead and see what a waiver might look like,” Bebout said.

Rep. Steve Harshman, R-Casper, is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and led the House team. Harshman said after the committee vote that Wyoming lawmakers are weary of expanding Medicaid on the basis of federal promises.

Harshman said the federal government has reneged on federal promises. Currently they have no option for health insurance.

sponsors will go into the 2015 session with some plan to push for full Medicaid expansion. Medicaid would save the state millions by relieving pressure on other health programs.

Dan Perdue, executive director of the hospital association, also serves as chairman of the association.

“ ‘This is a start,’ Perdue said in a prepared statement after the conference committee vote. ‘This ensures will go into the 2015 session with some plan to push for full Medicaid expansion. Medicaid would save the state millions by relieving pressure on other health programs.’

New limestone quarry coming to Albany County

LAHAMIR (AP) — A new limestone quarry and fine grind plant in Albany County may be operational by the end of the year.

The Laramie Boomerang reported Friday that incentives and employ 26 people.

The company’s environmental and safety manager is Danielle Wiebers. She says the mine should open by Dec. 31 and employ 36 people.

Albany County has used more than $4.5 million in state grants for the roadway. The Wyoming Business Council contributed $3 million, and the state transportation department allocated nearly $1.9 million.

Albany County owns the new road and leases it to the mine company. The development will help diversify the county’s economy, said County Commissioner Tim Chesnut.

The South Dakota firm received its air quality permit in 2010 and its land permit in March 2012.

Daly said the second half of the game saw many lead changes. He added that while the game physically, it was well fought, with fouls being called on both teams.

“It worked out at the end of the game we got some crucial free throws and made some important defensive stops,” Daly said.

He added that he was pleased with balance throughout his team. Hannah Puckett led with 17 points, while Bailey Reed led with 13 for his team. Mirich added nine and eight respectively.

“I was really pleased with our bench today. They came in and really and did the job that needed to be done. We had a good mental approach to the whole game,” Daly said, “It’s really ready to go.”

The lady Rams will face cross-county rivals Tongue River today at 7 p.m.

Daly said he feels like his team got a little bit better under pressure as a team. “We’re definitely capable of playing with them,” Daly said of Tongue River. “We need to make sure once we have a lead and when we get good shots, we need to make them. We cannot afford to limit on what we allow them to do.”

Love him or hate him, the fact is, heavyweight champ Mike Tyson now has his 10 professional boxing titles back. If I’m the first-round -- by using the old “one-two” combination, a left shot followed by a right cross. That combination was clearly his most effective treatment. Today, doers are throwing a two-one combo at prostate cancer, and just as it did for the young Mike Tyson, it is proving effective as well. It may well be that if you were diagnosed with prostate cancer that had spread beyond the prostate gland, a radical prostatectomy – removal of the entire prostate and some surrounding tissue – has been the gold standard for treatment. In addition, hor- mone therapy, chemotherapy, radiation therapy and even cryotherapy (freezing cancer cells with liquid nitrogen) have proved effective in individual cases. Unfortunately, using any single treatment increases the odds that the cancer will return. After an expert’s 2000 study has confirmed that using a one-two combo of radiation therapy and hor- mone treatment is doubling the 10 and Tyson survival rate of men with advanced prostate cancer. The researchers also noted that this double treatment doesn’t cause side effects that are much more difficult to deal with than those associ- ated with sole hormone treat- ment. So if you are diagnosed with locally-advanced prostate cancer, talk to your doctors about radiation therapy and hormone therapy (there are several types) com- bined with hormone therapy.

Pauline Phillips and Joanna Phillips isn’t, then face it – your stressed marriage is over. Photos from a private investiga- tor are beside the point. The email you read is proof enough.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my friend and I were at a wake and told me the person in the ca- ncer was holding a fork. My friend said, “I know her sooner rather than later,” and that there is a chance that your marriage is over. If you are repairing your marriage, you are going to do that and work on it. If she’s willing to do that and work on it, we need to keep those things that you both want to lose her. My dilemma is whether to tell her I have what’s going on. She has been given only a few years of attending church on Sundays of the main course being chiseled, someone would say, “Keep your fork.”

She sent the main course was her favorite part of the meal because she said, “something better was com- bined with hormone therapy” and with substances.” What she wanted was to convey to her loved ones at her funeral her belief that something better was to come.

You can accept that fact, you must come first, and unless you are the one who is doing it, it’s her. But her children care.” If she didn’t care about you, she wouldn’t be marry- ing you. But her children care. My problem is she wants to keep her ex-husband’s name as her middle name for the sake of her kids.

I feel she shouldn’t have kept her ex-husband’s name if she was already married to someone else. I have explained that it upset me, but she doesn’t care. What are your thoughts? – TRADITIONAL MAN

DEAR TRADITIONAL: I think her reason for wanting to retain her married name (and probably hyphenate it with years) is valid. It is perfectly fine for a woman to keep her children’s names. How, one line in your letter concerns me. I’m the one in which you say it upset you, “But she doesn’t care enough about you, you wouldn’t be mar- riage. She didn’t care about this couple. Dear Readers: Many folks join the gym around the start of the year. What is it about that holiday weight gain that makes us take a few quick hints for not only financial, but also for being a good gym customer.

*When looking into joining a gym, ask for a free trial. Some gyms will give you a week for free, or at least a try class.

*If you have any disability, we all know the standard senior and military discounts, but may not know more, which could save you money.

*When working out, don’t talk on your mobile phone if you need to keep it with you, you are silent in the gym.

ORDINANCE MD 243

AN ORDINANCE PROVING THE SHERIDAN DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY FOR THE PURSUANCE OF INTEREST DEVELOPMENT INCLUDING PLANNING AND IMPLEMENTATION OF DEVELOPMENT PLANS WHITHIN THE OUTER BOUNDARIES OF THE CITY OF SHERIDAN.

WHEREAS, the Sheridan City Council has determined that it would be in the public interest to create and establish the Sheridan Downtown Development Authority as provided by Wyoming Statute 30-7-674, for the purpose of facilitating and expediting the economic and physical development of the downtown business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming, by the creation of a public agency, the Sheridan Downtown Development Authority (the "Authority"), to establish a development plan for the downtown business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming; and

WHEREAS, the City Council further determined that it would be in the public interest to create a development plan with specific provisions to support the efforts of downtown investment and enhance the downtown business district; and

WHEREAS, a petition signed by 25% of the owners of non-residential property within the designated downtown area on February 14, 2014, in accordance with Wyoming Statute 30-7-674, has been presented to the Sheridan City Council for consideration; and

WHEREAS, the Sheridan City Council must now establish the downtown development authority and identify the boundaries of the downtown business district in accordance with Wyoming Statute 30-7-674 and provide notice of the meetings held to establish the authority.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Council of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming, by virtue of the Acts of the Legislature and in accordance with the provisions of Wyoming Statute 30-7-674, hereby establishes the Sheridan Downtown Development Authority. There is hereby created pursuant to the Act, a development authority for the purpose of facilitating and expediting the economic and physical development of the downtown business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming, known as the Sheridan Downtown Development Authority (the "Authority"").

The purpose of the Authority is to promote the economic and physical development of the business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming, by a. creating a development plan for the business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming, and

b. facilitating and expediting the economic and physical development of the business district of the City of Sheridan, Wyoming.

The Authority shall be subject to the direction and control of the City Council and shall be comprised of the members of the City Council.

The Authority shall be governed by a Board of Directors, consisting of seven (7) members, appointed by the City Council. The members of the Board shall be appointed by the City Council and shall hold office for a period of three (3) years, or until their successors shall be elected and qualified to succeed them.

The Authority shall be subject to the direction and control of the City Council and shall be comprised of the members of the City Council.

The Authority shall have the power to make and enforce such by-laws as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority, to appoint such officers and agents as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority, and to do all acts and things necessary or proper for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority.

The Authority shall have the power to make and enforce such by-laws as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority, to appoint such officers and agents as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority, and to do all acts and things necessary or proper for the proper conduct of its business and the business of the Authority.
