CHEYENNE (AP) — Max Mulfrieda struggles when he tries to think of what he won't miss about being secretary of state.

"I don't think there is anything," he said. "I come in here, and every day is different.

"I love what I've done. I love the ability to help people. I love being able to travel the state and help local communities with their needs. I'm just going to miss it an awful lot." Mulfrieda, a Democratic official and members of the public filled the State Capitol's west wing Friday for Mulfrieda's retirement ceremony.

After decades of working in state government, including eight years as secretary of state and eight years as state auditor, Mulfrieda will be leaving public office when his term expires in January.

Cheyenne (AP) — A national research and advocacy group gives Wyoming a "D" for teacher preparation programs and what state guidelines education students have to meet.

But the Washington, D.C.-based National Council on Teacher Quality still only gave Wyoming a "D-minus." In past years, Wyoming has gotten an "F." The average grade for all states this year was a "C." The organization's report says the state should ensure that all elementary teachers are sufficiently prepared for the ways that college- and career-readiness standards affect instruction of all subject areas. However, Wyoming Professional Teaching Standards Board Executive Director Andrea Bryant tells the Wyoming Tribune Eagle that the report may not accurately reflect what happens in the state's teacher training programs.

Wealth: Will seek input from local historians, art stakeholders on options for renovation and expansion of the performance art space at Sheridan High School.

One idea for the project was to push up the drop ceiling and add a balcony for additional seating.

Another proposal includes the addition of practice rooms behind the stage curtain.

Still another consideration is to remove part of the proposed square footage. But with little land on which to build, that might be off.

"You don’t know what you’re getting into until you get into it," Brudzinski said. "How you lay in your HVAC and how everything ties in with the rest of the building and what kind of a mess that’s going to be and so on, we don’t know.

The injunction is to jump start their efforts dramatically.

Would be three to five years and a recent discovery could be a strong and will likely continue to grow.

The Fine Arts Committee is in the process of working with the art, for the community and for the building in general. The answer may be to sell the paintings.

Original transferred from the archives of the schools to the library for more protection and the option for public viewing. The paintings were not consigned to their current home with the concern of care or restoration.

As a result, they are in some cases on loan with eight remaining at the library and others on display at the Brinton Museum.

For now, the committee is focused on community discussions and securing an updated appraisal of the works.

The group plans to reach out to Sheridan County stakeholders for more about the history of the paintings. The group will visit with the current caretaker and other key art stakeholders in the community for their input.

"When the paintings came to our attention we all went, "What's the case?"...and there are other people who would like to have input on what is going on in a field. We are in the loop and we're not leaving them out. And we're quite sure that there are enough people out there that's what's good for the students."

Bundling up for the show
Anvada residents Chatty Cramp helps her 3-year-old daughter Willow Cramp with her gloves during the Christmas Celebration at the Raymond Planck Creative Center at Ursus on Saturday evening.
Maxfield said Friday that was one of the highlights of his career out of state politics. He served in, especially secretary of state, which he career out of state politics.

Maxfield was first elected to the statewide position in 1987. After serving two terms as auditor, he ran and was elected secretary of state in 2006 and 2010.

Maxfield said when he first took the recreation commission job, he never expected to make a decision he has had to make. And although it will be difficult for him to leave, he said he is ready for retirement.

“Plans to stay busy in retirement,” he told the Wyoming Tribune Eagle (http://bit.ly/130PkX5). “I'm going to miss it, and I wish it wasn't leaving. But I know I made the right decision when I decided not to run so I could spend more time with my family.”

Maxfield said he is proud of what he has accomplished in the office, including working with the Legislature to streamline election processes and to crack down on fraudulent shell companies.

But he said one of the highlights was working with local communities as a member of the State Loan and Investment Board. That body approves grants and loans to cities, towns and counties.

“I put on about 50,000 miles a year traveling to every community in the state,” he said. “Working with the local communities has been a true pleasure.”

Gov. Matt Mead said he saw the difference Maxfield had on the state any time he would travel with him.

“When you go to any county or any town, one of the favorites is always Secretary Max Maxfield,” Mead said.

“That's because he went all over the state. He and his wife Gayla engaged people all over this state. It's not just the work they did, but the care and manner in which they did it,” Mead added that Maxfield was a mentor and friend during his time in office.

“The advice and counsel he gave me was always spot on,” he said.

Deputy Secretary of State Pat Arp also has worked alongside the Maxfield for years. She said the thing she will miss the most about him is the compassion that he brought to the job.

“Max really has been known with staff, Wyoming communities and the nonprofit groups he's worked with as just a compassion individ-ual,” she said.

Maxfield said he plans to stay active in the community by working with Wyoming Alzheimer's Association and the Cheyenne Animal Shelter as well as by volunteering to see if Mead wants to appoint him to a board or com-

Turnovers cost Rams in opening weekend

FROM STAFF REPORTS

BIG HORN — Turnovers cursed the Big Horn Rams over the weekend, resulting in only one win and two losses for Ryan Alley’s team at the Herder Classic in Glenrock.

The Rams committed 20 turnovers in three games, something Alley said exposed how young his team was.

Despite 20 of those turnovers coming in the team’s season opener against Riverside, the Rams had 13 assists on 20 made field goals and were able to squeak out a 49-48 win.

“The amount of assists we had this weekend was encouraging,” Alley said. “We’re passing really well and playing as a team. We missed a lot of close shots, but the shooting will come as the season moves on.”

Alley said the best game of the weekend was Saturday’s early matchup with Glenrock, but 15 turnovers and just 11 percent shooting led to an eventual 54-33 loss. The Rams got even sloppier Sunday afternoon as 29 turnovers cost them in a 94-44 loss to Thermopolis.

Big Horn will look to bounce back next weekend at the Foothills Classic.

FROM STAFF REPORTS

BIG HORN — The Big Horn Lady Rams basketball team won two of the three games over the weekend at the Coal Miner’s Classic in Wright.

The Lady Rams fell to Thermopolis 49-48 in their first game of the tournament. Bailey Bard scored 15 points in that matchup while Kayla Crum was the high scorer again with 13, while Emily Blaney had 11 and Emily Blaney had six.

Big Horn came back in the team’s next two games. The Lady Rams topped Riverside by 50 points, earning the 67-17. Bard was the high scorer again with 13, while Abby Buckingham and Morgan Nance each added nine and Ashton Kohlsch put up another five.

In the team’s final game of the weekend, the Lady Rams topped Greybull in a close 5-32 game. Buckingham contributed 11 points to her team’s total. Bard added seven points and Kayla Crum put up another five.

The Lady Rams will suit up again this weekend to play in the Foothills Classic at Tongue River High School.

Sick, sore Manning leads Broncos to AFC West title

SPORTS

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four bags of intravenous fluid and an AFC West championship made Peyton Manning feel a whole lot better.

Manning came into Sunday’s game with flu-like symptoms, and then hurt his right thigh.

It was all good, though. Manning threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to Demaryius Thomas in the third quarter and Connor Barth kicked five field goals to lead Denver to a 22-10 victory against the San Diego Chargers on Sunday that clinched the Broncos’ fourth straight division title.

“He was sick. I don’t think it was Jordan game flu sick, but he was sick,” running back CJ Anderson said, referring to how sick Michael Jordan was when he scored 50 points in Game 1 of the 1997 NBA Finals.

“He went out there and battled,” Anderson added. “He battled the Chargers. It battled the crowd, battled the adversity and battled himself. That’s a lot of battles going on in one man’s lifetime right now. But he went out there and overcome it and helped us out with a W today.”

Manning led Denver’s offense 62.4 percent of the time, threw for 146 yards and had two touchdowns.

Turnovers cost the Rams in opening weekend.

SHERIDAN — Dianne Moser’s Lady Eagles needed to go undefeated at the Coal West Challenge and came home with a fourth-place finish.

The team that was high on her list of choices for college was the Wyoming All-Stars. They will begin conference play at Northwest College on Jan. 9.

The boys went from being down four at halftime to being up by 12 going into the third quarter, coach Gale Smith said. “They were really rank in the top five, so I am proud of the teams that will probably all qualify for thestate tournament.”

DEAR ABBY: Recently, our state became one that allows civil commitment of an individual suffering from mental health issues. Our son in law and his partner, “Alex,” and I have been together for 18 years. We had planned to be married last spring, but a death in the family put our wedding on hold. When I found out about the ruling, I requested Alex to be excused and suggest we go ahead and marry. To my disappointment, he didn’t seem to care. He hasn’t mentioned marrying once, and when I bring it up, it’s quiet and he doesn’t respond.

We’re older, and because of health issues we don’t have any children. If I was still in my 20s, I think I might be feeling like the relationship with Alex has grown to a “roommate” without my realizing it. I’m sure this is not how he feels. Do I let it alone and settle for what we have, or should I push for a change? What should I say to him?

DEAR ABBY: My teenage grandson with an upcoming birthday is looking for tickets for this summer's major sporting event for his birthday. For several years we have taken him to an active sex life. I'm wondering if my relationship with him is something that no longer interests him. If so, how should I handle it?

Imagine you had a chance to interview Santa Claus. What would you ask? What would Santa say? Here are some ideas from some Kid Scoop readers, who came up with the questions and the answers for today’s page.

1. How many ice marbles can you find on Santa’s path?
   Santa: I was a smart, cheerful child. When my parents died, I was heartbroken. I cried, not out of self-pity, but out of true love. One of my tears dropped into the snow and froze to make an ice marble. When I held it, it glowed and took me to the North Pole. I met the elves and they needed my help. After I grew up with them I took on the greatest task of all—delivering presents. The ice marble gave me powers I have today.

2. Where do you buy your groceries?
   Santa: I don’t buy them; Mrs. Claus grows them. On Christmas Eve I come back with a sleigh full of soil instead of an empty sleigh. We grow food in our greenhouse and eat fresh veggies and fruit everyday.

3. What kind of milk do you like?
   Santa: I like whole milk best, but Mrs. Claus put me on a diet so I have to drink non-fat.
   - By Nick

4. How can you visit all of the children of the world in one night?
   Santa: I fly at super speed; that’s why you can’t see me.
   - By Adrian

5. What would you ask an elf, a Santa reporter, and a person who will have a conversation between a reporter and a person who will be the subject of the report.
