CASPER — Wyoming manufacturing companies gathered with representatives of the prime contractors in the defense and aerospace industries in Casper Monday and Tuesday for the first-ever Wyoming Aerospace and Defense Supply Chain Conference.

The idea for the event came together with Forward Casper, and we had remarkable success with manufacturing leaders of Lockheed Martin to Sheridan in March to meet with Forward Casper after having invited representatives of the defense and aerospace industries to the A&D industry and provide a portal to transacting business in this mission-critical industry, Charles Walsh, CEO of Casper Area Economic Development Alliance, which hosted the event, said in a press release.

Jay Stender of Forward Sheridan organized the event which hosted the event, said in a press release. Jay Stender of Forward Sheridan organized the event which hosted the event, said in a press release.

“Stender said there was great turnout at both the community and state levels, with 10 Sheridan companies and 35-37 Wyoming companies in attendance.

“The huge discussion in Wyoming really is how do we diversify the state.”

Mark Kiener, SWM said.

SHERIDAN — Last week, several regional agencies were involved with a search and rescue operation for a lost hunter in the Bighorn Mountains. The man was found alive and alert after a three-day search. For search and rescue team members, the action doesn’t stop when the person is found.

A Johnson County Search and Rescue team with two ranchers on horseback found 61-year-old Kansas resident Rudy Miller Oct. 2 at approximately 11:20 a.m., according to the Sheridan County Sheriff’s Office.

Douglas — He’s not a doomsday prepper, nor does he believe a zombie apocalypse is happening anytime in the near future, but health care is increasingly fraught with uncertainty, and SMH’s growth has been accompanied by shifting local and nationwide financial trends.

Without careful management, treating more patients could actually negatively impact the hospital and slowly eat away its services continue to evolve. Patients, understand- ably, aren’t always sympathetic to the hospital’s financial diffi- culties.

Health care is extremely expensive everywhere, and while the prices at SMH are generally below the national average, the overall cost of care is still daunting for the average patient.

Aksamit joined the search of the dispatch call. When site searching for Miller, Miller’s reported medical consistent, Aksamit said.

Miller searched for areas where Miller could have stayed warm and try because it’s the thing’s help prepare them for searches like this. The volunteers Aksamit maintained team of volunteers, Ferriman said.

One challenge for any other search is that the money upfront to find the missing people, Ferriman said. SCRS is a search and rescue agency in the state of Wyoming, one of the One-Cent Sales Tax funds for search, rescue and rangers are reimbursed for the state for fair amount of time, Ferriman said.

Ferriman said some search can cost tens of thousands of dollars because of aerial support, equipment and fast, he said. CONTRACTORS: Every one of the prime contractors said they were looking for capable subcontractors, especially since there is a current work shortage for companies in Colorado. The two main steps that Sheridan industry leaders used to take in the short run, according to Stender, are accommodating the heavy administrative burden that comes with the industry and meeting certification standards for employers. Kennon Products had begun working toward those goals about two years ago. The keys to achieving defense contracts are simply expressing interest in doing the work and demonstrating present capacity and capabilities.

“The real crux of it is that the businesses didn’t understand that there is such an opportunity if they elect to pursue it,” Stender said.

Rep. Mark Kinser, R-Sheridan, attended the event and believes the industry could play an important role in Wyoming’s transitioning economy. The huge discussion in Wyoming really is how do we diversify the state, Kinser said. “To me, looking at industry that is not related to minerals is a very important step. I think there is such an opportunity to diversify our manufacturers and in turn diversify Wyoming.”

Kennon Products, Vacutech, LHI Industrial and KMIT Technologies were especially well-represented at the event. Kinser said that Major General Jay Lindell, the Aerospace and Defense Industry Champion at the Colorado Office of Development and International Trade considers his position a regional position and is enthusiastic about the possible northward expansion.

Quebec 01 missile alert facility dedicated as state historic site

WYOMING TRIBUNE EAGLE VIA WYOMING NEWS EXCHANGE

CHUGWATER — Quebec 01, the only Peacekeeper Missile Alert Facility in the world and a crucial factor in ending the Cold War, sits just 30 miles north of Cheyenne.

On Saturday, it was dedicated as Wyoming’s newest state historic site. Close to 100 people gathered where military personnel used to sit, prepared to take action in the event a nuclear war broke out.

“I think this is a fantastic opportunity for us to educate folks who don’t have that military background about what went on in southeast Wyoming and how unique the Peacekeeper system is to southeast Wyoming,” said Christina Bird of Wyoming State Parks and Cultural Resources.

The F.E. Warren Air Force Base was the only place in the world where the MX, or Peacekeeper missile, was deployed. The 80 missiles activated, maintained and kept on alert by F.E. Warren Air Force Base personnel were the most advanced and most destructive intercontinental ballistic missiles in the world, according to state parks officials.

“It is a fascinating part of our history,” said Rich Choppa, a program director at Cheyenne. The guidance systems that sit 60 feet underwater, surrounded by concrete that could withstand a nuclear blast, were built by his company.

Now, as a state historic site, the public can walk through the on-site living quarters and take an elevator down to see those systems. The process to get Quebec 01 where it is now took years of collaboration between partners, including the Wyoming Office of State Parks and the State Historic Preservation Office.

“I’m very proud to have had a small role in this effort, and now the public has a lasting opportunity to better understand our political, military and social history through this facility,” said Mary Hopkins of the Wyoming Office of State Parks.

From 1988 to 2005, Quebec 01 was an active missile alert facility. The Peacekeeper arsenal was used as a show of strength and deterrence to war with Russia.

“These are the missiles that brought Russia to the negotiating table,” Choppa said.

Air Force Lt. Col. Justin McMillan said the U.S. used the same strategy to this day. “Folks say we never use nuclear weapons,” McMillan said. “We use it every day. That 24/7 combat capability, that nuclear deterrence is that shield that is provided.”

Each Peacekeeper weighed about 165,600 pounds and held 10 warheads, according to the National Park Service.

State Sen. Brian Boner, R-Douglas, spoke during the Quebec 01 State Historic Site Dedication on Saturday, Oct. 5, in Chugwater.

A 20-year-old Bangladeshi woman who worked for over 35 years at a garment factory has died in the first recorded case of a woman dying of factory-related injuries in Bangladesh. The woman, identified as Nargis Begum, was killed while working at a factory near the town of Sylhet. She was taken to the hospital, where she was pronounced dead. The incident comes amid growing concerns about the safety and health of workers in Bangladesh's garment industry, which is one of the country's largest employers.

In 1972, former Vice President Gerald Ford was nominated by the Republican Party to run against incumbent President Richard Nixon in the U.S. presidential election. Ford, who had been named to succeed Nixon as vice president after the Watergate scandal, ran on a platform of stability and competence. He won the election, becoming the first incumbent vice president to win the presidency. The victory was significant because it marked the first time in U.S. history that a sitting vice president had won the presidency. Ford's campaign emphasized his role as a loyal and respected member of the Nixon administration. He also sought to position himself as a moderate candidate who could heal the political division that had characterized the Watergate era. Ford's victory was a turning point in American politics, signaling a new era of presidential leadership and a shift in the political dynamics of the time.
SAGE launches new show

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — SAGE Community Arts Plus Art Gallery has launched a new exhibition titled “Resonance: Legacy Through Art.” An artists’ reception will be held Thursday, Oct. 17, from 5-7 p.m., and is free and open to the public.

“The exhibition features artwork by local glass artist Nancie Furnish, and her son Daniel Furnish, a mixed media sculptor and printmaker. Included in the exhibition, along with functional glass pieces, woodblock prints, and kinetic sculptures, is a 54-inch stained glass window that was created by mother and son and that is otherwise on display in the Unitarian Universalist Church of Sheridan.

“The reflective and illuminating qualities of glass are not only technical, but, for me, they are spiritual,” said Nancie Furnish. “I like to think that my father and grandfather must have had that spirit as they applied their trades. I see many of their artistic qualities reflected in the work of the next generation — my youngest son, Daniel.”

The exhibition will be on display at SAGE through Nov. 19. For more information, contact SAGE Executive Director Kendra Freiblack at director@sageart.org or 307-674-1970.

SAGE is located at 21 W. Brindage St.

Top Pompeo aide resigns, adding to tumult over Ukraine

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior career foreign service officer who served as a top adviser to Secretary of State Mike Pompeo has resigned after being linked to the tumult in the State Department, adding to the internal strife that has clouded the Trump administration’s handling of Ukraine and the Trump administration’s handling of the impeachment inquiry.

Pompeo’s personal aide, Marie Yovanovitch, another career foreign service officer, resigned last week as congressional investigators looked into whether the administration was delaying military aid to Ukraine as leverage to get Ukraine to investigate a political rival while his administration was delaying military aid to Ukraine.

CODY — Wolves seen as coyotes of the ecological landscape, as beasts of man's fate for a century or more, but much of what people say about them is based on myth, not fact.

That was a central theme of a "Wolf Populations in Yellowstone" presentation Oct. 3 by Doug Smith, the man who led the Yellowstone Wolf Project by Doug Smith, the man who led the Yellowstone Wolf Project. More informed science on myth, not fact.

According to the Yellowstone Wolf Project Annual Report 2018, there were at least 60 wolves in nine packs primarily living within the Park boundaries as of Dec. 31. Yet there are still very much hardened attitudes about wolves, he said, ranchers versus wolves.

"The old way is still entrenched," Smith said, that it would better to kill them off all over again.

"The No. 1 wolf yarn was, "said Smith. "The old way is still entrenched," Smith said, that it would better to kill them off all over again.

“No need to reduce red or processed meat consumption!” “Feel and Bacon to the Rescue!” “Red Meat Isn’t Unhealthy, a New Study Shows!” “Whoo Hoo! What a Relief.”

No wonder so many of you got excited about this article, which looked at the potential health benefits of eating a vegetarian diet. But before you decide to change your eating habits, there are a few things to consider.

First, the study was observational, meaning that it did not randomly assign people to different diets. This means that the results may not be causal. For example, it’s possible that people who eat vegetarian diets tend to be healthier overall, which could explain why they have a lower risk of heart disease.

Second, the study was conducted in a single country, which limits the generalizability of the findings. It’s not clear whether the results would be the same in other countries with different lifestyles and diets.

Finally, the study was funded by a nonprofit organization, which could have influenced the results. For example, it’s possible that the researchers were biased in favor of vegetarian diets.

So, before you make any big changes to your diet, it’s important to consider these limitations and to keep an open mind about the potential health benefits of meat consumption.

Happy 75th Birthday, Smokey Bear!

Smokey Bear first appeared as a symbol of wildfire prevention in 1944. This year marks the 75th Birthday of this forest hero.

The Bear and the Wildfire
In the spring of 1950, winds were pushing a wildfire through a forest in the Capitan Mountains of New Mexico. Firefighters from far and wide rushed to put the fire out.

A little bear cub climbed a tree to escape the flames burning on the ground. He was only five pounds, and he was very scared.

Firefighters found the cub still alive, but his paws and hind legs were badly burned. They couldn’t find his mother. The little bear cub was sent to an animal doctor to be treated and bandaged.

A forest service ranger named Ranger Ray cared for the cub. Ray’s 4-year-old daughter played with the bear and cherished him up.

New Home, New Name
The little bear was named Smokey and moved to the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. and he became the living symbol of Smokey Bear.

One Popular Bear
The United States Forest Service received so many letters from children for Smokey that he needed to have his own:
