SHS student council spreads kindness

SHERIDAN — During finals week, Sheridan High School junior McKailyn Malles made it through her first period math final with a piece of candy and an encouraging note from student council sophomores. Malles said she felt empowered to take on the day because a simple gift showed how her peers understand her stress.

Also a student council member, Malles is involved with the Compassion Club at SHS, an initiative that joined dozens of similar movements across the U.S. last year to use simple acts of kindness to combat teen suicide, bullying and depression.

At SHS, each grade level of student council is responsible for one week of Compassion Club activities. While school organizations like Sources of Strength take a more involved approach to peer-to-peer interactions as a mental health support system, three student council members said not to doubt the power of a simple note or kind comment.

SC launches program to meet labor market needs

SHERIDAN — Sheridan College is rolling out a new program geared at increasing skilled laborers in the workforce while accommodating the needs of nontraditional students. The first-ever Weekend Welding Certificate course starts March 6, and represents an opportunity for students to keep their day jobs while they earn professional certification.

Vice President of Academic Affairs Dr. Estella Castillo-Garrison said the program covers the same curriculum as the school’s existing one-year program but is designed to accommodate students with additional life obligations.

SHERIDAN — Sheridan County School District 2 students are receiving educational opportunities that extend beyond the four walls of a classroom.

Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Assessment Mitch Craft led a board of trustees meeting Monday that highlighted three current programs the district offers its students.

While other outdoor learning initiatives exist in the district, Craft discussed the Learn Outside science program, the Antelope Butte ski program and the Sheridan High School outdoor club. The Learn Outside program, designed for fifth-grade students, is not your typical “school to camp” field trip model. Instead, the program orients around state standards and involves related classroom work both before and after the students’ time in the field.

“Our teachers are very purposeful in designing standards-referenced lessons and activities that build up before they ever get to camp and then follow-up activities for after they get back. It is very organized and systematic around learning targets,” Craft said.

WELDING: Interest in alternative schedule high

“...is the perfect model for the 21st century...”

- Business Dean Sheela Burke

Enrollment in the weekend course currently stands at capacity of 15 students. While it’s true that the school’s existing welding program already runs on Friday afternoons and most weekends, Burke said the first-ever certificate program for welding was a natural fit for the college and its workforce.

Burke said the first-ever certificate program for welding at Sheridan College will be offered on a part-time basis, fitting in with students’ existing schedules. The program will start in March and run through December.

Spreading kindness easy but necessary part of cultivating positive environment

The proposed legislation addresses the legal protections for Wyoming workers and county governments seeking workers compensation for their injured or deceased employees.

The bill would establish a performance bond requirement for workers that would provide assurance to counties.

That's because when we come to school or into the community, it's kind of soft, but at least it opens an avenue for the state to represent workers. The state attorney general's office would have more resources to pursue this kind of litigation against bankrupt companies.

The Wyoming Department of Labor and Employment is drafting a bill in direct response to the bankruptcy of coal operator Blackjewel and its parent company, which filed for bankruptcy earlier this week.

The bill, which would be introduced on Monday by the committee, would allow the state to represent Blackjewel's workers in bankruptcy proceedings.

Physician (Senate), heal thyself

As Sen. Pat Tooney, R-Pa., notes, under NAFTA there were unenforceable minimum-wage requirements and worker rights for Mexican workers but not for U.S. workers. He observed that NAFTA had been destroyed as part of the broader economic policy of the new administration, and it is unclear whether the USMCA represents a new direction. Under NAFTA, minimum-wage requirements were not set in stone and could be changed by executive order or by a vote of the House and Senate. Under the USMCA, these requirements are more permanent and cannot be changed without a formal renegotiation. Tooney describes NAFTA as a “disaster” and says that the USMCA is “mostly taken from the Trans-Pacific Partnership,” which he describes as “lawless.”

The USMCA's labor provisions require that countries adhere to internationally accepted labor standards, but they do not specify which standards are acceptable. Tooney argues that the USMCA should be subject to tariffs — taxes paid to support the domestic industry — and that this would make it more attractive to U.S. buyers. He also notes that under NAFTA there were no provisions for labor rights, and that the USMCA has no provisions for labor rights.

The USMCA also includes a provision that allows countries to impose duties on imports that are sourced from countries that do not have labor standards that meet the requirements of the USMCA. This is known as a “sunset” provision and could be used to limit imports from countries that do not meet the standards of the USMCA.

The USMCA also includes provisions for investor-state dispute settlement, which allows foreign investors to bring claims against governments for actions that affect their investments. Tooney argues that this provision is a “can opener” for foreign investors and could be used to extract money from U.S. taxpayers.

The USMCA also includes provisions for intellectual property protection, which Tooney argues is unnecessary and could be used to limit access to generic drugs. He argues that the USMCA should be subject to tariffs to make it more attractive to U.S. buyers.

The USMCA also includes provisions for environmental protection, which Tooney argues is unnecessary and could be used to limit access to natural resources. He argues that the USMCA should be subject to tariffs to make it more attractive to U.S. buyers.

The USMCA also includes provisions for financial services, which Tooney argues is unnecessary and could be used to limit access to financial services. He argues that the USMCA should be subject to tariffs to make it more attractive to U.S. buyers.

The USMCA also includes provisions for government procurement, which Tooney argues is unnecessary and could be used to limit access to government contracts. He argues that the USMCA should be subject to tariffs to make it more attractive to U.S. buyers.

Comedians return to Correspondents’ Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedians are making their return to the White House Correspondents’ Dinner after last year’s hiatus. Kenan Thompson, of NBC’s “Saturday Night Live,” will headline this year’s dinner, which takes place April 25.

Presidents and first ladies have traditionally attended the dinner, which serves as a celebration of the First Amendment as well as a fundraiser for college scholars. Reporting awards are given as well.

But President Donald Trump has skipped the dinner throughout his presidency and instead has elected to hold campaign rallies. The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment about whether the president would attend this year.

Last year’s dinner featured Pulitzer Prize-winning commentator Thomas Friedman. He continued to suffer from a bout of pneumonia. The show has been rescheduled for next year. Nearly this week, John moved to cut short a performance in Auckland after he lost his voice and needed medical help on stage. John said in a statement Tuesday he was “incredibly disappointed” and sent his sincerest apologies to his fans. It was not immediately clear if his illness would affect other dates on his tour, which will go on to Australia.

John called off his fans at Sunday night’s performance showed John breaking down in tears as he told the cheering crowd he couldn’t go on any longer. The 72-year-old singer said he had walking pneumonia and was being assisted off stage. The concerts were part of John’s Farewell Yellow Brick Road tour. After the New Zealand shows, John is scheduled for seven performances in Australia before traveling to the U.S. and Canada.

Jury to begin deliberating in Harvey Weinstein’s rape trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury is expected to begin deliberations Tuesday in Harvey Weinstein’s trial after the actress’ emotional testimony from multiple women accused him of sexual assault.

The panel of five women and seven men will begin to weigh the evidence that Weinstein raped a woman in a Manhattan hotel room in 2013 and forcibly performed oral sex on another woman, TV and film production assistant Mimi Haleyi, in 2013.

The Associated Press has a policy of not publishing the name of the rape accuser because “I wanted him to believe I wasn’t a threat.” The Associated Press has a policy of not publishing the name of the rape accuser because “I wanted him to believe I wasn’t a threat.”

China virus outbreak chilling recovery for Asian economies

BANGKOK (AP) — The virus outbreak in China has put South Korea’s open skies, healthy rivers and creeks, working ranches, wildlife habitat and vibrant history, along with expanding recreational opportunities to connect people to the land they love. Make your brand loyalty pay off Ranger Dana Austin of Dallas, Texas, led into her Southwestern account a few days before the end of 2019. She and her husband, Jordan Joseph Ramirez, flew to Las Vegas (and back home to Dallas) for the holidays. The trip was part of a last-ditch attempt to try to save their relationship. The benefit of the Southwest Rapid Rewards program that allows pass holders to book flights for as few as 6,000 miles a year, and pay for flights at a lower cost with a半夜 to $97 for a roundtrip) was more than a few hundred dollars a month. But consumers jump through hoops for more miles.

“I’ve been a passenger on a dis-hair shopper at American Express, and I’ve purchased a jacket and jeans from the clothing store,” he said.

He’s no extreme couponer, but he leveraged his loyalty horizon: his airline card, AEO Connected Rewards account and account.

“Whatever the secret? When consumers are devoted to a particular brand, they can cash in.

WHAT’S IN A REWARDS PROGRAM?

Rewards, or loyalty programs, foster repeat customers. That often takes the form of discounts on the next purchase, points or miles that can be exchanged for cash or services.

“You can use them to build a database of people you know are already familiar with the brand is less costly than constantly amassing new customers,” Rugaber said.

Rewards programs are also called loyalty programs. Customers can earn miles or points for specific purchases, and redeem them for products, travel or other incentives. Holding onto existing customers who are looking for something out of the ordinary is a benefit for retailers,” she said.

WHAT DOES IT TAKE?

You — you, — you can save scores like the examples at the beginning of this article. Here are three ways to do it.

LOOK FOR A PROGRAM.

Check to see if your favorite travel or food brands have a rewards system you can join. Many companies are looking for ways to retain customers. “It’s just try to see if one exists in the first place,” Rugaber said.

LOOK ON YOUR SHAKES.

While you should avoid spending money solely to rack up points or miles to try to optimize your purchasing behavior.

Understand both the rules and also the potential benefits of the program,” she said.

Learn what purchase points count toward bonus, how often you can redeem them for a reward.

MAKE YOUR BLINDS OFF.

If you’re sticking with one brand exclusively, loyalty programs can be a good motivator. So occasionally check for offers from other brands.

WHAT’S IN IT FOR RETAILERS?

Retailers are banking on the fact that the benefits of a loyalty-averse customer retention — and translate into more transactions, more sales. Consumers are already familiar with the brand is less costly than constantly amassing new customers,

Regional wrestling to set Broncs up for success at state

BY JOEL MOLINE

SHERIDAN — Sheridan High School wrestling enters the final two weeks of the season and travels to Cheyenne Central High School to compete in the regional tournament Feb. 21-22.

Wrestling the regional tournament itself is a nice accomplishment for Junior Reese Osborne said. Osborne won the 133-pound bracket his freshman year at the regional tournament and the 130-pound bracket his sophomore year. “For me, regions has always been important because of the seeding it puts me at for states,” Osborne said.

Junior Hayden Crow said winning the individual bracket is monumental heading into the state tournament. Crow won the 138-pound bracket as a sophomore and is wrestling in the 170-pound class this year.

Wrestlers winning their regional bracket receive the first or second seed at state, while the runners-up from the two regions are awarded the third and fourth seeds. The rest of the state qualifiers are placed into a pool and draw their spots on the bracket.

All-Star weekend, as expected, was about honoring Kobe

CHICAGO (AP) — It has become one of the NBA’s most reverent traditions: On the morning of the NBA All-Star Game, the league pays tribute to retired players with what is called the Legends brunch. It attracts about 3,000 guests, and every year a recent Hall of Famer is honored as the host city is honored.

Hamlin and Newman contrast risk and reward at Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In a single thrilling lap around NASCAR’s most storied track, Denny Hamlin and Ryan Newman displayed the risks and rewards of the dangerous sport they both love. Hamlin won his second consecutive Daytona 500 and third in five years on Monday night as he capped past Newman on the final lap of a second overtime shootout. The win came as Newman’s car was turned hard into the wall, then flipped onto its roof, where he was hospitalized as he was hit in the driver’s side by another car.

His car continued to slide upside down along the speedway and it crossed the finish line in flames as safety crews hurried to snuff out the fire and pry Newman loose. It took several minutes for his car to be rolled back onto its wheels, and medical personnel used solid black barriers to block the view as the 2020 Daytona 500 winner was placed in a waiting ambulance and taken to a hospital.

All the while, the sense of dread set in over Daytona and its showcased race, already pushed back a day by rules that dampened a previously visit by President Donald Trump. There has not been a fatality in NASCAR’s elite Cup Series since 2001, but Newman’s crash had everyone worried.

“The damage to his Mustang was extensive — it appeared the entire roll cage designed to protect his head had caved — and officials would not allow his team near the accident site. Two agonizing hours after the crash, NASCAR read a statement from South Florida Racing that said Newman was in “serious condition,” but doctors indicated his injuries are not life threatening.”

Hamlin, meanwhile, was trying to find the delicate balance of celebrating a milestone victory while showing proper respect to an injured driver. “I have never seen Newman’s situation,” Hamlin did victory burnouts and celebrated with his team.

Not until Fox Sports said it would not interview him did Hamlin learn of the severity of the situation. Team owner Joe Gibbs was apologetic for the No. 11 team’s initial reaction. “I was focusing on our car, and everybody started celebrating around us,” Gibbs said. “I think we take for granted sometimes how serious the safety issues are not life threatening.”

The crash was a stark reminder of both the dangers of auto racing and the improvements NASCAR has made since 2001, when Dale Earnhardt was killed on the final lap of the Daytona 500. Earnhardt was the last Cup driver killed in a race and NASCAR has made massive safety improvements in the nearly 20 years since. “I think we take for granted sometimes how safe our cars are,” Gibbs said. “But No. 1, we are praying for Ryan.”

During the long wait for an update, Trump took to Twitter to express his concern.

When I got home that night, my husband asked how din- ner went, and I shared what happened. He took it per- sonally. He felt disrespected and missed his shot to start a romance and emphasized I would never do that to my friend.

I have been speaking to others I have spoken to about this said don't say anything. I can't take the pressure of him and I am now invited to the wedding of Caroline's stepdaughter. My husband refuses to go because of what happened. It was a long time ago. He never thought about Caroline's stepdaughter. He said he has no feelings whatever for her husband. He is there. I have been mar- ried for 28 years, and my hus- band doesn't join me when I visit Caroline. He insists I should tell Caroline what happened. - Coverage UP

DEAR ABBY: I see a candidate for the "job." How can I look good for me as I do for him? How do I handle this? - SECOND THOUGHTS THOUGHTS: Here's how.

I’m thinking I may be disappointed because I may have built up expectations in my head. We are talking about a second date, and I’d like to give him another chance to prove himself, but I would like to handle it delicately so as not to hurt his feelings. I never thought of myself as judgmental. Am I unreasonable for wishing my new boyfriend wants to look good for me too? How do I handle this?

DEAR ABBY: This is a delicate subject for me, so one I’ve never been faced with before. I have been speaking to a really nice guy I met online, and after many weeks of talking, we decided to meet up. What happens, though, when West leads the spade jack on its own and East discards a double? East takes three tricks in the suit. West discarding a discouraging diamond decoy. Now East should check the high-card points. Dummy has 11, has his 15 and declarer promised 15. Thus is left at most one for West, but he has already been seen all four honors. Since West has no red, a suit switch is pointless. Whenever you have taken all possible sides tricks, however, you can safely discard on the off-suit and trump. East must lead a fourth club. If partner has either the spade eight or nine, his ruff will be off the board. But East will now collect a trump trick by covering either remaining honor when it is led from the board. Note also that it doesn’t help South to ruff any club with his spade king. North still will get a trump trick.

It may paralyze the East: I count myself in nothing else so happy as in a soul born in Los Angeles, Calif., on this date in 2001. This city, this star has portrayed Bruce Wayne or “Gotham” since 2014. He’s also appeared on episodes of “Shooter,” “Criminal Minds,” “True Detective” and “The Night Shift.” His latest film work includes “Incarnate.”

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A work of art can sometimes move you to tears. You might be more at home with Val Kilmer in the upcoming thriller “The Birthday Cake.”

It’s been three weeks since Kobe Bryant’s tragic death, and the healing process for those who knew him, loved him, and were inspired by him is only just beginning.

The first Kobe Bryant MVP award ceremony was held on Sunday, Feb. 9, 2020, in Los Angeles for the 2020 NBA All-Star Game. The event honored Kobe Bryant's contributions to the game of basketball and his legacy.

It was a night filled with emotions as fans, players, and loved ones gathered to celebrate the life and career of Kobe Bryant, who passed away in a helicopter crash on Jan. 26, 2020.

The ceremony began with a touching tribute from Vanessa Bryant, Kobe’s wife, who shared a heartfelt message about her late husband.

After that, the award was presented to the players who had been selected by the NBA coaches as the Most Valuable Player for the 2019-2020 season. The award was won by Gianna Bryant, Kobe Bryant’s daughter, who passed away in the same crash.

The ceremony ended with a performance by the all-girls dance group, the Los Angeles Young Dolls, led by Jordan Knight, a member of the pop group, The Backstreet Boys.

It’s a hard time for everyone to work through, but it’s important to remember the impact Kobe Bryant had on our lives, and to continue to honor his legacy in our own ways.

Let’s all come together as a community to support one another during this difficult time. The Kobe Bryant MVP award ceremony was a beautiful tribute to a truly amazing person who left a lasting impact on the world.
