DAYTON — Running can be so much more than exercise. For some girls, it teaches self-confidence, goal-setting, can foster friendships, leadership skills and build community.

For the fifth year in a row, the Tongue River Valley Community Center is hosting its Run Girl Run program, a six- to eight-week after-school program for girls in fourth through eighth grade, where girls of all abilities are invited to become runners.

“You don’t have to be an ‘athlete’ to be a runner,” said Lacie Schwend, assistant director of the Tongue River Valley Community Center and Run Girl Run organizer, adding that the benefits of running are not limited to physical ones.

STATE OF EMERGENCY: Governor emphasizes social distancing, new test protocol

CHEYENNE — Gov. Mark Gordon declared a state of emergency in response to the nationwide coronavirus pandemic Friday, corresponding with President Donald Trump’s declaration of a national emergency.

“This does not represent an escalation of concern but allows us to quickly activate the Wyoming National Guard,” Gordon explained in a press conference with Dr. Alexia Harrist, state health officer and state epidemiologist with the Wyoming Department of Health.

The declaration will make state businesses eligible to apply for federal funding from the Small Business Association to offset the impact of coronavirus, Gordon said. For more information on the emergency loan program, visit the SBA website at sba.gov.

State of emergency: Governor emphasizes social distancing, new test protocol
PROGRAM: Similar efforts across nation encourage girls to develop strong sense of self

Fifth-graders from left, Calin Walsh, Lily Maslowski and Aubrey Kelty were all smiles during the Run Girl Run workout Wednesday, March 11, 2020.

"We wanted to build an all-inclusive group that was warm and welcoming," Schwend said. "We're going to put our own all-inclusive group together this year. This year we will work on our staff … I thought, 'We have enough capacity here to do it with volunteers, and we can have 16.'" Schwend herself said she was not an athlete, as a runner, but that is not required. "The girls encourage each other; we learn together and talk about who reached their goal and who didn’t — and why, if they need to," Schwend said. "We remind ourselves that not every workout will be a good one. Sometimes we rest, sometimes we get a stomachache. And sometimes, we rock it." Schwend said. "No matter what the result is, we are proud we went and did it anyway."

"The Sheridan Regional District is offering an American Red Cross Lifeguard Certification class over from Sundays in April. If you are interested in working as a Lifeguard at Kendall Pool over the summer season, this is a great opportunity to get your foot in the door for that position."

"This is where the individuality shines. Some girls love to run and their goal is to run 40 laps and hit their goal. Others set a goal of 17 laps and have to work up to it. "The distance doesn’t matter. Schwend said. "We want them to set a goal, with others who also have their own goal, and then we work … to reach our goals," the girls encourage each other; we learn together and talk about who reached their goal and who didn’t — and why, if they need to,” Schwend said. "We remind ourselves that not every workout will be a good one. Sometimes we rest, sometimes we get a stomachache. And sometimes, we rock it." Schwend said. Re COVID-19

While Wyoming often prides itself on being the “Last Best Place,” there is much confusion and concern surrounding COVID-19, or the coronavirus. As the number of cases rise in the United States, it is important to take precautions to keep oneself and our communities safe. While each day brings new steps recommended by health officials and experts to keep us healthy, we can slow the spread of the virus.

First and foremost, everyone should wash their hands often. Scrubbing your hands and water for at least 20 seconds is a good idea after leaving a public place, or after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing.

Cassandra Casady, Republican candidate for state auditor, said disarray within the Republican party has led the Democratic party to gaining power.

Casady, a former state senator and state agriculture commissioner, accused the Republi- cans of turning back the clock on the state’s economy.

Casady said the state’s economy has not recovered from the recession and that the economy is still struggling.

OPINION

Despite bipartisan lament, upward mobility lives on

As a nation we are nearing the 50th anniversary of the Civil Rights Act, which was signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964. The act was a major milestone in the fight against racial discrimination and for equal rights for all Americans. It was a turning point in the fight for civil rights and laid the foundation for many of the gains we have seen in the decades since.

In recent years, however, the promise of the Civil Rights Act has been challenged. Under the current administration, the Department of Justice has continued to roll back protections for people of color and other marginalized groups. This has had a chilling effect on civil rights and civil liberties.

This is particularly evident in the ongoing debate over the Affordable Care Act (ACA). The ACA was signed into law by President Barack Obama in 2010 and has provided health care coverage to millions of Americans. However, under the current administration, efforts have been made to repeal key provisions of the act, including the “individual mandate” which requires nearly all Americans to have health insurance.

The fight over the ACA highlights the ongoing struggle for equality in America. While significant progress has been made in recent decades, much work remains to be done to ensure that all Americans have access to the resources they need to thrive.

In the end, it is up to each of us to stand up for what we believe in and work to create a more just and equitable society. By standing together and speaking out, we can continue to move forward and build a better future for all.

A man wearing a mask stands in front of a crowd of people. The man is holding a sign that says “Black Lives Matter.” The scene is vibrant and energetic, with people of different ages and backgrounds coming together to support a common cause.

The sign is a powerful symbol of the movement for racial justice and equality. It is a call to action, a reminder of the work that still needs to be done, and a beacon of hope for a better future.

had planned to use my space this month to discuss the recent success of the second annual Sheridan WYO Winter Rodeo -- an event that is believed to be one of the top 10 events in the nation. It was a success. I was thrilled to be part of the event, which has been a milestone for our town.

The Sheridan WYO Winter Rodeo is a major event for our community, and it provides a boost to the local economy. The event is designed to showcase the skills of our local riders and to promote the sport of rodeo.

I would like to thank all of the volunteers and organizations that helped to make the event a success. The Sheridan WYO Winter Rodeo is a testament to the hard work and dedication of our community.

I hope that you were able to enjoy the event and that you will join us next year for the third annual Sheridan WYO Winter Rodeo.

Sincerely,

Dave Kinskey

Screenings for colorectal cancer for those older than 50

It may not be the most glamorous subject, but talking about colorectal cancer saves lives.

Screenings detect both men and women, it is the second leading cause of cancer-related deaths in the US. Effective screening, we have effective tools to identify the presence of colorectal cancer family history or presence at an earlier stage.

Colorectal cancer increases with age, with more than 90% of the cases we see being diagnosed in people age 50 or older. These risk factors are associated with an increased risk of colorectal cancer. Some of these risk factors are related to lifestyle choices and must therefore be modified.

Maintaining a healthy weight, being physically active, not using tobacco, increasing fiber intake and eating a balanced diet are all steps you can take in reducing your risk. Some risk factors cannot be changed, these include increasing age, a family history of colorectal cancer, inflammatory bowel disease, and being a member of certain ethnic groups.

Colorectal cancer may cause symptoms if it grows. These symptoms may include seeing blood in or on your stool, unintentional weight loss, changes in bowel habits and weakness or fatigue caused by a low blood count.

Screening is the practice of looking for cancer or precancerous conditions in people with- out symptoms. Screening colorectal cancer when it is most effective when done at the first sign of abnormal cells to develop, it takes on average 10-15 years for these cells to become a cancer.

Screening is one of our most effective tools for preventing colorectal cancer because it allows us to identify precancerous polyps and identify small cancers that aren’t yet big enough to cause symp- toms.

There are several screening tools for colorectal cancer, including sigmoidoscopy which allows us to both find polyps and remove them. Taking to your doctor’s office, to your doctor’s office, we can help identify the most effective and appropriate screening test for you. In general, we recommend sigmoidoscopy for those between the ages of 50 and 75, though if you have a history of colorectal cancer or a family history of colorectal cancer, we recommend sigmoidoscopy for those between the ages of 50 and 75. Talk to your doctor.

Some casinos drop buffets, live shows as virus spreads in US

Atlantic City, N.J. (AP)—A Pennsylvania casino shut down temporarily. Hard Rock Atlantic City closed its buffets and the Hard Rock chain canceled live entertainment at all its properties for at least a month as the nation's casinos struggled with the coronavirus outbreak.

The Valley Forge Casino in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania, said Friday it was closing, following a directive from the state's governor to close all non-essential businesses and community events and communications. The county is a precautionary measure against the spread of the coronavirus, which has the potential to sweep through the area, it said.

The casino will reopen March 27 and have limited buffets, live shows and entertainment.

The eagle received treatment at the raptor center for levels of lead "considered clinical by most raptor veterinarians and rehabilitation centers" which may have contributed to his accident, according to a press release from the center.

"It was a classic story of losing your grip in Jackson," said Rod Melton, who windowed the bird shuttered. "Bald eagles are 'serial monogamists,' meaning they define themselves to mate at a time and often remain with the same one for years or even decades. But if that mate dies or disappears, they won't skip a breeding season to mourn. That's of course not what we wanted to happen," Warren said.

Trump declares virus a national emergency

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump on Friday declared the coronavirus pandemic a national emergency, as Washington struggled to provide Americans with cash and medical aid as the world took a step closer to a global recession.

Speaking from the Rose Garden, Trump apparently was about to officially declare a national emergency, a rarely used power that would free up as much as $60 billion in federal emergency funds to respond to the virus. But in a bit of hijack humor, the president first focused on federal aid to buy oil to fill the strategic petroleum reserve “right up to the top.”

Trump said he was giving the federal government “the authority to take in all medical supplies and equipment, as necessary.”

“Through a very collective decision and for the common national determination, we called it a national emergency,” the Trump administration said.

The president’s announcement makes the new public-private partnership to produce ventilators in short supply, as well as hospital caps, as his administration has acknowledged that the nation is being too slow in making the needed changes. “We don’t want to take responsibility at all” for the slow rollout of ventilators, Trump said.

The White House plans to drive their testing in some areas to encourage states to screen those seeking to get tested.

“Still, we don’t want that either,” summarized a White House official.

“We don’t want the testing done either but unless they have coronavirus, who cares,” the official said.

Trump said the White House encourages states to agree on a broader back stock plan to try to ensure that Americans have access to coronavirus tests.

The House Democratic leadership is pushing ahead from the balcony at the capital on Thursday with a proposal for a national emergency with a need for Congress to approve it.

“Our nation, our economy and our healthcare system are under threat,” Pelosi said. “And every time we fail to provide Americans with the emergency authorities to work together, we will lose our chance to ensure that we can have a united response.”

The White House spokesperson for the president, who works from home, was infected with the virus by White House Medical Unit and it was determined that because she was exhibiting symptoms, she was not tested as she did not need to quarantine.

Barr, meanwhile, was staying behind in Washington “left great and wasn’t showing any signs of feeling too sick” his spokesman Kerri Kuiper told CNN.

The president ordered emergency commission testing at this point, which told him he was negative for the virus.

Trump is still attending campaign meetups and Sunday church services. Mar-a-Lago resort, the conference which he is now self quarantining.

The president was still holding his Monday press conference and is still speaking to governors.

Trump said he’s had a number of coronavirus tests and is now back on the campaign track.

Chief Economic Advisor Larry Kudlow announced that there is a “nice recovery” in overseas markets.

stocks are up.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average up 1,985 points and the S&P 500 is up 235.

President Trump has been traveling for a very long time and has been a bit of a long hauler, leaving Washington on Friday and is expected to be back by Sunday.

It’s a sign of the times that the president has a personal health scare and has stepped back from the payroll, the bureau reported.

The Census Bureau should have reached its goal of recruiting more than 2.6 million temporary workers by now in the past ten years. Census Bureau Director Steven Dillingham said he expects the bureau to accomplish what we need to.”

But the Census Bureau is lagging behind.

It has reached its goal of recruiting more than 2.6 million temporary workers by now in the last decade head count that launched for the first time in 2000.

In Vermont, part of the problem is due to the fact that the Census Bureau increased its hourly wages by around $1.50 in almost three-quarters of the states since last December, the Census Bureau said it has reached.

In Colorado, the bureau’s goal of recruiting more than 300,000 temporary workers has been far less ambitious.

The Census Bureau has about 20,000 temporary workers across the country, which is a significant number of people.

In Colorado, the bureau’s goal of recruiting more than 300,000 temporary workers has been far less ambitious.

Ucross fellow Laurie Schwartz, an audio and performance artist, discusses how she created an audio piece by recording interviews with her friends during an event in recognition of International Women’s Day at Sheridan College Tuesday, March 10, 2020.

Ucross fellow Nellie Beltjens explains how she creates pieces by cutting out small rectangles and placing them in different places within the composition at Sheridan College during an event in recognition of International Women’s Day on Tuesday, March 10, 2020.

HERERIDIAN – Sound artist, curator and visual artist Nellie Beltjens is known for her “eternal now” approach to visual art. She pays tribute to her medium in visual art with a bird cage on her head, as Schwartz has lived Europe since the early 1980s. Beltjens said it was too early to speculate about how her work will differ from what she created in 2012. For now, the silence surrounding her is a gift, she said. Not knowing the outcome of her work will give viewers the opportunity to imagine and be involved, which is one of the objectives of the “eternal now” art movement, rather than clarifying the next thing and you look back,” Beltjens said. “Then the next thing and you look back,” Beltjens said. “Think too far ahead isn’t useful because it confuses the next step and what you do, so you start thinking — touching on the theme of Schwartz’s definition of “indefinite self” solution.” Nothing is ever truly lost, she said. Not knowing the future is an important part of the creative process. “What happens? What happens?” Said Schwartz, “What happens? What happens?”

NEW YORK (AP) — There’s only one television show this Monday night that knows the ratings and says it did the same thing more than 40 years ago.

That’s CBS’ venerable newsmagazine “60 Minutes,” which has earned more Emmy awards than any other show in the history of television and, according to some estimates, more than 1,000 million viewers. The show finished as the top show for the evening news ratings race, averaging 3.1 million viewers.

CBS’ “60 Minutes” was the only show in the top 20 last week, its network’s slot in the top spot this time, claiming 38 of the 40 most-watched slots.

LONDON (AP) — Images of soap cans and Marilyn Monroe’s face are part of the new Andy Warhol show at London’s Tate Modern as it explores the Pop artist’s life and work. The exhibition includes more than 100 works from the 1950s to the 1980s, including images of celebrities, Salvatore Daman’s face, Elvis Presley’s and Marilyn Monroe’s, which is the theme of the series “Marilyn’s Lips.”

It follows the less-known works such as “Ladies and Gentleman,” a series of 1974 pictures of famous drag queens, and “Andy Warhol’s famous silver wigs. He had a collection of more than 50 of them. Campbell’s soap cans and celebrities including David Bowie and Prince on display.”

Cheyenne — The Senate Education Committee approved a bill that would create an advisory committee made up of industry representatives to help shape a long-term review of education funding.

The committee voted 11-2 in support of the bill, which would create a Senate Education Trends Committee. The committee’s power to cut education funding in 2021. Outside officials will draft an alternative vision for the state’s education system, while lawmakers would decide what that vision should look like, Balow said.

But Thursday’s vote was largely anticipated by the Legislature’s chief education funding body. Balow said after months of negotiations, the Senate Education Funding Committee spent 800 hours to develop a proposal to cut $96 million from the school system. “The message I got yesterday is that you want to come visit with other members, great,” Balow told the committee Thursday.

The Legislature cut $96 million from the school system to do the study. The proponents suggested the committee start the state in a lot of different situations. There may be different forces to address issues within the school system to do. We don’t want to know what is actually buying in the process consultants, said. He then recommended that the Legislature underline what the budget shortfall was. Opponents of the proposal are pushing for $60 million to fund other school initiatives.

“Why can’t we continue to be most concerned about our state’s elderly and vulnerable population and what we are doing to make all the necessary steps to address this issue. And we all should be,” said. When we look at the school system, “I’m not convinced that it is advancing legislation to modernize our education system more,” she added.

The 2020 Legislative preview, published by WyoFile, includes short biographies of the state’s key education officials. The preview is a tool for the state, he said. “We are not convinced that it is advancing legislation to modernize our education system.”

The bill would not be opposed by lead advocates for education in Wyoming who worry about the state’s education system that promote professional to public schools. “It’s a very important issue for Wyoming,” he said. Ann Sparks

Ann was born in Sheridan, Wyoming to Leo and Wilma Rilliede. She attended school in Sheridan where she married Jim Sparks—her husband of 61 years. The couple had four children. One of her favorite things was to relocate at a moment’s notice, with kids in tow. During the course of their marriages, they moved all over the country. Among those, their tours included Portland, Oregon; New Orleans; and Twenty-Nine Palms Marine Corps Base in the desert. She easily made Friends wherever they were stationed. Ann always thought of Sheridan, WY as home, where she and her family left for retirement in the U.S. Marine Corps. As their kids left the nest and started their own families, Ann and Jim settled in Casper, WY in 1994.

Ann enjoyed flower gardening, cooking, reading, watching birds and dragonflies, and had a love for a few special dogs. She loved Western history and liked to study and visit sites of historical significance. Her greatest love was her devoted husband and family.

Ann was a beloved daughter, sister, wife, mother, grandmother, and friend to so many. She was a wise woman of great integrity, grace, and loving spirit.

Ann is survived by her husband Jim Sparks of Casper, WY; her daughter, Sarah Sparks-Clendenon of Sonoita, AZ; granddaughters Kayllee Sparks and Tracie Sparks of Denver, CO; her son Jim (Bernadette) Sparks of Billings, MT; her daughter Susan (Bill) Bergman of Denver, CO; her daughter Beth (Wade) Bergman of Casper, WY; and her grandchildren; Nick Sparks, Amy, Steven, and Lee (Lynelle) Byron, Kimi and Anna Bergman, and Santiago Bergman. She is also survived by her brother Richard (Sue) Rice of Lander, WY; and her sister Jane (Rod) Adams of Sheridan, WY.

A celebration of Ann’s life will be held at a later time. In lieu of flowers, please make a donation in her honor by donating to the charity of your choice.

"We are urging you to respect and comply with regulations," said Prací, Powder River, Powder River Basin in a press release. Consider the following factors when choosing a watch:

1. Durability and Build Quality: Look for watches with robust construction. Submariner and Rolex are known for their durability and are built to last. The casings of both watches are made of high-quality stainless steel and are designed to withstand harsh conditions.

2. Water Resistance: Both the Submariner and the Rolex are water-resistant. The Submariner can withstand depths up to 1,000 feet, while the Rolex is water-resistant up to 300 meters. This makes them suitable for diving and other activities involving water.

3. Functionality: Both watches have additional functionalities. The Rolex offers a chronograph function, while the Submariner has a date display. This adds to their practicality and makes them versatile pieces.

4. Design and Aesthetics: Everyone has their own taste when it comes to design. The Submariner offers a classic and sleek design, while the Rolex has a more traditional and elegant appearance. Choose a watch that aligns with your personal style.

With these factors in mind, the Submariner and the Rolex are excellent choices for those seeking a durable and reliable watch that can handle various activities and environments. Whether you’re diving or working in the office, these watches are reliable companions.

SHERIDAN — The Wyoming High School Activities Association Board of Directors said in a press release in response to the COVID-19 pandemic all extracurricular activities statewide will be suspended until March 28. The suspension goes into effect March 16 and superintendents of schools have the option to extend the timeline should they choose.

The WHSSAA Board made the decision to not have the 3A/4A state basketball tournament this year.

“We understand the tremendous disappointment this decision is for our student-athletes, especially our seniors, but please realize that we must be a responsible state organization and that our highest priority is ensuring the safety of our students, schools and communities,” the press release said.

Spring sports will be allowed to practice at the discretion of each school district.

WHSAA staff will continue to work with state entities that are experts and follow their guidance moving forward.

Sixty-four percent of Americans are expected to retire with less than $15,000 in their retirement savings accounts according to a new survey. In the 55s and beyond, as many as 40 million will die of cancer, heart disease, or Alzheimer’s disease. Collectively, cardiovascular disease, cancer and diabetes account for another two-thirds of deaths in the U.S., and about $710 billion in direct and indirect costs annually.

The good news: A new international study published in the journal Circulation makes it clear how you can dodge pocketbook-draining heart woes and live longer and healthier.

The bottom line: If you adopt at least four of these 12 lifestyle habits — you never smoke, have a healthy BMI (at 18.5-24.9), get 30 or more minutes of moderate to vigorous physical activity a day, moderate consumption amounts of alcohol and eat a diet that’s low in saturated fats and ultraprocessed foods — you have a good chance to reach at least 75 years of age. That’s what the study found in the University of Toronto study says you need to cut your risk by almost 30% in four weeks.

BUSTED pets! Dear Readers: Busted pets, loosely defined, are those animals that are not a dog, cat, or farm animal. Do you know anyone who has one or know someone who does? There are some things to consider. Ferrets, hedgehogs, snakes, turtles, rabbits, and many others can be found in pet stores, but there can be problems with keeping them as pets. Chiefly, they require specialized veterinary care, which can be hard to find and expensive. Habitat is another concern. Thus, if research must be done to prove an environment that’s safe and conducive to healthy living. Wild animals may have been taken from their natural habitat, which could have been done illegally. When you take an exotic, sometimes wild, animal from the private home and captivity, the animal’s mental and physical health may be affected, which can lead to biting and other attacks.

All in all, exotic pets are best left in the care of experts, who will have the time and training to care for them. — Heloise

There were several excellent entries to my Christmas Competition, and the winner by a whisker was Mukesh Ghatiya from Bengaluru, India. Congratulations. The runners-up were Steven Glaser of Holladay, Utah; John Harvey of Mount Hope, Canada (a winner in 2016); Ben Hawn of Lancaster, Pennsylvania (last year’s winner); and Stanley Lipnick of Naples, Florida.

Bridge is full of maxims that are not right all of the time. However, there is one play technique that always works – unless (sorry!) you don’t have the entries to carry it out. What is this technique?

Against South’s contract of three no-trump, West led the club king, and East encouraged with the nine. How should declarer have planned the play?

North should have overcalled one no-trump, not risked reaching a 4-2 club fit. South upgraded to two no-trump because of his excellent spot-cards.

From the bidding, South knew that West had to hold the heart king and spade ace. Therefore, he ducked the first club trick, but when West continued with the club two to his partner’s jack, declarer won with his ace. (He could have ducked again, planning to win immediately with the ace if East switched to a heart.)

Next, South knew to lead toward honor combinations. He played a low spade toward dummy, putting up the queen when West played low. Declarer returned to hand with a diamond to the jack for the lead of a second low spade. Here, West had to play the ace on thin air, giving South three spade tricks and nine in all. The defenders took only one spade and three clubs.

Ah! Looks like a nice day to do some sketching.

I'll just grab my sketchbook and pencils.

I thought I'd try my hand at cartooning.

Where will you get your ideas?

That won't be hard.

It's a strange feeling when you walk up onto the mound for the first time each spring.

Sort of gives you a feeling of power, eh, Charlie Brown?

Oh no, it's more a feeling of... well, it's kind of hard to describe.

I think it would be a feeling of power...

No, I think it's more a feeling of newness... after all, it's a new season and a new ball game... it's that kind of feeling.

It's also a feeling of being part of a great tradition.

I should think there'd be sort of a feeling of power.

I think it's something that has to be experienced.

Let me try... will you let me try?

Oh, yes, Charlie Brown... I see what you mean.

It gives you a feeling of power!

Honey, why aren't you dressed yet?

You're not! Listen if my pants are in the closet, I'll eat my hat!

Meeting for Women’s Rights

In 1848, a group of people met in Seneca Falls, NY to talk about the problems women faced because they didn’t have the same rights as men. At that time, women could not own property, they could not vote and very few could go to school.

The word suffrage means the right to vote in elections. A suffragist is a person who fights for suffrage.

This meeting was the first women’s rights convention in the United States. At that meeting, men and women signed a document called the “Declaration of Sentiments and Resolutions.” By signing, these people agreed to the goals of what was becoming the woman’s movement.

For more than 70 years, women and men marched, wrote letters and articles, protested and picketed to get an Amendment to the Constitution which would give women the right to vote. These people were known as suffragists.

Victory!

On May 21, 1919, the U.S. House of Representatives finally approved the 19th Amendment, also known as the Susan B. Anthony Amendment, guaranteeing women the right to vote. That was just the first step. The U.S. Senate and at least three-quarters of the states had to approve it before it would become the law of the land.

The United States Senate approved the amendment a week after the House.

On August 18, 1920, Tennessee became the last state needed to ratify the 19th Amendment.

One week later, on August 26, the 19th Amendment officially became part of the U.S. Constitution, forever protecting American women’s right to vote.

Today, more than 68 million women vote in elections because of the courageous suffragists who never gave up the fight for equality.

Arrested for Voting?

On Election Day, Nov. 5, 1872, Susan B. Anthony walked into her polling place and voted.

Two weeks later, a U.S. marshal knocked on her door.

“I have a warrant for your arrest,” he told Susan. “You are charged with voting without the lawful right to vote.”

In 1872, by U.S. law, a person had to be 21 years or older to vote. Susan was born in 1820. Was she old enough to vote?

Susan voted two other requirements for the right to vote. She was a U.S. citizen and she had never been convicted of a felony crime. Why was she arrested for voting?

Kid Scoop Puzzle

I n 1920, exactly 100 years after Susan was born, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was passed, giving women the right to vote.

While Susan did not live to see women get the right to vote, in 1979 she became the first woman to appear on U.S. money.

SHERIDAN — When Brock Bomar rounded the final corner of the track at the Campbell County Recreation Center Field House on March 7, he was not always positioned at the front of the pack. In those situations, Bomar knows he needs to push himself to the finish line. As he pulled alongside the other competitors, he could hear his teammates cheering him on, some running alongside the track and he could see a teammate jumping up and down, urging him to the finish line.

“I feel like they helped me perform my best in some of those events and that is pretty special because I feel like they were a part of my state championship.”

Bomar was the first competitor to cross the finish line in every race he competed in, bringing home three individual titles and anchoring the 4x200-meter relay team, winning the event with teammates Izak Aksamit, Carter McComb and Nathan Fitzpatrick.

Bomar said to win four events at the state meet is something special and an accomplishment that does not happen often.

“I feel very fortunate to have accomplished that. I know not many people in the history of the state have been able to do it.”

Head coach Taylor Kelting said coaches knew Bomar had the potential to be a great track athlete in seventh grade. Injuries have kept Bomar from the track at different times, but healthy, he is capable of remarkable things.

Bomar was one of the many success stories Sheridan had during the 2020 indoor track championships. The success of one athlete spread throughout the team, allowing the Broncs to build off one another.

Sheridan, in total, walked away with six event titles, a trio of second-place finishes, and 10 other placings. Gaige Vilhauer won shot put and Ryan Karajanis won pole vault.

Bomar said it was amazing to see everyone performing at their best. The team put in a lot of work over the past year to be in a position to repeat as champions. Depth was the key for the Broncs to repeat as champions. The points gained from the first-place finishes would have been enough for only fourth place. Points earned from athletes placing second gave Sheridan the title and the rest of the placings solidified Sheridan’s standing.

Depth was the key for the Broncs to repeat as champions. The points gained from the first-place finishes would have been enough for only fourth place. Points earned from athletes placing second gave Sheridan the title and the rest of the placings solidified Sheridan’s standing.

“We had so much depth this year and we had those sixth, seventh and eighth place finishes that put us over the top,” Kelting said before adding “Actually, way over the top.”

Sheridan earned 117 team points. Star Valley placed second with 67 points. While it was a comfortable margin, placings of third place and lower earned Sheridan 49 points.

Without those placings, Sheridan had 78 points, with those 49 additional points available for Star Valley, now only 11 points behind, Kelly Walsh at 13 points behind or Central 15 points behind.

Kelting said the athletes winning events will earn a team a lot of points, but athletes in lower placings will give the team a state title.

“This team was such a great senior class and everybody loves each other on this team... This team is going to be one of those special ones we remember for a long time,” Kelting said.

Bomar said there are lessons to be learned in losing but there is a lot to gain from winning. Sheridan enters the outdoor season with confidence. The Broncs want to stay at the top of the track and field rankings in Wyoming moving into the outdoor season.

The Broncs know how hard that title is to win.

Kelting said the team was happy for about 24 hours; now the focus is on the outdoor season. The Broncs placed second at last year’s outdoor track state meet after winning every indoor meet, the indoor title and every outdoor meet leading up to the event.

“They want to make sure that never happens again. They were able to do it in the indoor season and I know that fire is still going to be there for the outdoor season.”

The second-place finish from last season kept Sheridan hungry and continues to fuel the Broncs heading into spring.
